

Avant l'âge de raison

Bernard Plossu

William Lord Coleman

Bernard Plossu regularly photographed her children "Before the age of reason", while gleaning their verbal expressions striking: I spoke to my stomach! ; One day I want to become a baby, I want to take my shadow, Dad, you'll soon be old! ; T'as seen as I am an artist too? ; Do I have changed since I have 5 years? ; The church believes that it touches the sky! ; Pink, you can do with roses, That's when you died, so there's nothing to do ...

In the book is structured so the images and words gathered over the years of innocence.

Photographer atypical Bernard Plossu trace from his 1963 solo, outside reporting, photography and visual modes. "It does not take a photograph, one sees, then share it with others, wishes to clarify Bernard Plossu. I practice photography to be one floor with the world and what happens. Apparently my poetic images are not incurred. But the practice of poetry is it not also resist the stupidity? "
