Structured around the question of image, the residence of the artist Sylvain Gouraud in the center of Strasbourg University Hospital of Psychiatry questions the representation of psychiatry and people with mental disorders in the collective imagination.

Psychiatry is a practical part in the hospital. Difficult to describe, quantify and simplify, it escapes many methods of classification. She is an outsider in a health system that is constantly trying to rationalize. I see a parallel with the place of artistic creation in our society. This partly explains the parallel links between the ancient practice of psychiatry and art.
